

8 of the Best Tech Podcasts for Teachers

Whether you're looking for tips on something as specific as integrating digital tools in your classroom or as general as becoming a better teacher in the 21st century classroom, podcasts are a great place to start!

The genius of teacher podcasts is that they blend the practical advice you need to be better at your job, along with stories and advice from real educators, in an easily digestible format. And the best part? You can listen to them anywhere.

So, without further ado, here are eight of the best tech podcasts for teachers as selected by the team at Teach Away (in no particular order):

1 House of #EdTech

In House of #EdTech, host Christopher Nesi explores how technology is impacting and changing not only the way teachers teach but education in general. Listen to stories from teachers and innovators for teaching tips and strategies you can use in your classroom tomorrow.

2 Every Classroom Matters

Host Vicki Davis covers two main topics in her podcast Every Classroom Matters - the effective use of technology to teach and using technology to build a better relationship with students. Although new episodes of this podcast ended in January 2017, it's still a great resource for student-teacher relationship building in the classroom!

3 Moving at the Speed of Creativity

A long-running podcast on education technology and digital literacy, Wesley Fryer, host of Moving at the Speed of Creativity, focuses on how these two important concepts are shaping current education and teaching styles.

4 TEDTalks Education

Part of the famous TED Talks organization, TEDTalks Education is all things education and learning from some of the brightest and most innovative minds in the industry! Podcasts abound on the subject of technology in the classroom.

Love podcasts as much as we do? Try creating one with your students. It's a fun and collaborative project and great way to incorporate digital tools into your classroom!

5 EdSurge Podcast

Tune in for the weekly rundown of all things to do with education technology with EdSurge Podcasts. From exciting news, inspirational interviews and insightful debates, EdSurge is a great listen for teachers looking for new and exciting ways to implement technology in the classroom!

6 Teaching Matters Podcast: NPR

NPR is a great resource for education-focused podcasts that cover a variety of topics from stories from teachers to the latest classroom resources. The Teaching Matters podcast focuses on the changing needs of students and how teachers can keep up. Each week different different teachers discuss their experiences and advice on classroom management.

7 Cult of Pedagogy

If there's a concept that has to do with teaching, Jennifer Gonzalez covers it on per podcast Cult of Pedagogy. Full of tips, stories and interviews from fellow teachers, administrators, parents and students - she provides a wealth of information helpful for any teacher, regardless of their subject area or experience level.

8 The Edtech Podcast

This UK based podcast explores the influence of technology in education around the world. Host Sophie Bailey, has featured a variety of guests ranging from classroom teachers to UN officials. This podcast aims to connect education and technology but is sure to open your mind to education on a global level and help you in blending useful technologies into the classroom.

From your morning commute to an evening stroll, podcasts can fit seamlessly into your everyday life and make you a better teacher in the process.

Want to learn more about incorporating digital tools and technologies into the classroom?

Created by Teachers College, Columbia University and Teach Away, Digital Learning for the K-8 Classroom prepares educators to cultivate not only their own digital literacy skills but their students as well. With an emphasis on cutting-edge theory and research on digital learning in the context of the K-8 classroom, teachers in this course will learn the practical strategies they need to be successful educators in the 21st-century classroom.

TEACHERS COLLEGE
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Upgrade your skills for the digital age today!

Get started